

IMPORTED HONEY

Evening Post. 18/6/37

The importation of honey into New Zealand was discussed by delegates to the National Beekeepers' Association conference today, and a remit was carried asking for Government control of all imports. Several delegates spoke of the danger of apiary diseases being brought into the country if honey was imported without strict control, and it was agreed "that no honey should be imported into New Zealand, except through Government channels."
